FOREWORD

Kala M. Stroup
Commissioner of Higher Education

The Coordinating Board for Higher Education has statutory responsibility for the certification of proprietary schools to operate in Missouri. The data in this report provide important information about this major educational resource for the state.

Among the requirements for schools to be certified is the submission of institutional and student data. These data permit observations about the private career schools, both individually and as a group, including the number of students enrolled; the demographic, educational, and economic characteristics of those students; the types of programs in which the students are enrolled; the number of students graduated; and the success of those graduates in securing employment related to their area of study.

The Directory and Statistical Summary: Proprietary Sector of Missouri Postsecondary Education, 1994-1995 is the seventh annual report and summary of information relating to Missouri's private career schools. It is intended that the publication be an informational and planning resource for the schools that submitted the data, for accrediting and professional associations, and for governmental bodies and agencies. The assistance of private career school officials, without whose effort and cooperation this resource would not be possible, is greatly appreciated.

INTRODUCTION

Extensive institutional and student data are collected from the private career schools which are certified to operate under the provisions of sections 173.600 through 173.619 of the Missouri statutes. These data are processed and maintained as a planning and decision making resource for the schools submitting the data and for the Coordinating Board. They permit observation of the characteristics, scope, and economic impact of the proprietary sector and the identification of trends over a period of time.

This Directory and Statistical Summary: Proprietary Sector of Missouri Postsecondary Education is the seventh annual publication derived from those data collection efforts. It is a two-part volume. The first part is a directory of schools certified to operate as of the date of publication. The second is a compilation of the data collected for schools certified during calendar year 1994 and a graphic display highlighting changes taking place in this sector over the last five years. It is important to note the school directory and the list of schools submitting data are not the same. Data are available from some closed schools that no longer are listed in the directory. Conversely, newly certified schools are listed in the directory but may not have submitted enrollment or other data at this time. The proprietary sector is somewhat more heterogeneous and fluid than other sectors of postsecondary education and its configuration is in a continual process of evolution and change.

The directory section is divided into the three major categories of institutions approved to operate by the Coordinating Board. These categories are private career schools certified to offer instruction in Missouri; non-Missouri private career schools certified only to recruit students in Missouri; and non-Missouri regionally accredited colleges and universities which are certified to offer instruction in Missouri. As of November 1995, a total of 118 schools in these three categories were certified to operate. These consist of 81 Missouri private career schools, 16 non-Missouri private career schools certified only to recruit students in the state, and 21 non-Missouri regionally accredited institutions. Since 1988, the total number of certified schools has decreased by 45. The majority of the decrease (42) has occurred due to the closure of Missouri-based private career schools.

At the same time, a subtle shift is taking place within the private career sector. Accreditation and federal financial aid regulations have promoted the development of a more homogeneous program and institutional structure at the larger private career schools. The result has been a reduction at many institutions in the number of programs that provide quick and direct entry into the workplace. Entities with close ties to the trades and businesses affected by this change are moving to fill the gap by establishing narrowly focused, very short-term schools and training programs.

There are data for 91 Missouri-based private career schools reported in the statistical summary portion of this publication. While data are displayed by individual school, the observations made in this narrative and in the graphical displays are limited to the private career school sector in Missouri as a whole.

During 1994, Missouri private career schools enrolled 20,334 students in 625 instructional programs of a widely varied nature. As the graphical display section indicates, the great bulk of students continues to be enrolled in business-related programs. Allied health continues to show a marked increase in enrollment and in its share of total enrollment.

As a result of enhancing our data collection process, this report includes the first information concerning the level of programs in which students are enrolled. Completion information has shown a growing interest in degree level study (associates and above) and the enrollment numbers indicate that trend will likely continue. Enrollment data for 1994 indicates almost 30 percent of students are degree seeking. As a sector of education usually associated with short term training, this information illustrates an often overlooked aspect of these schools and their students.

It should be noted that the graphic and statistical sections of the report do not include enrollment information for correspondence schools. This is a result of the limited nature of data collection activities considered feasible for this type of school. Based on the total number of enrollments, home study appears to be a relatively popular educational approach with students. The total enrollment at correspondence schools totaled 20,058 in 1994, nearly equal to enrollment at resident schools. Current goals of the certification program include enhancement of the student oriented data collected from correspondence schools. This would allow the inclusion of these schools in the enrollment portion of this report.

The schools included in this report graduated 19,175 students into the employment market, expended $68,125,374 into the state's economy, and employed 1,804 persons with a payroll of $30,453,735. In addition, they awarded $61,844,443 in student financial aid. Clearly the private career school sector is a sizeable segment of postsecondary education in Missouri which continues to command public interest.

The integrity of this directory and statistical summary is sensitive to the accuracy of the data submitted by individual schools and to the processes of recording and display of those data by the Department of Higher Education. The utmost care has been exerted to maximize its integrity; however, total attainment of that goal is still being pursued. Inquiries regarding the contents of this Directory and Statistical Summary should be directed to Leroy Wade, Coordinating Board for Higher Education, 3515 Amazonas Drive, Jefferson City, Missouri, 65109-5717; (314) 751-2361.
